Nixon Picks Envoy to Denmark

Associated Press

✓ Philip K. Crowe, a career Foreign Service officer from Easton, Md., was picked by President Nixon yesterday to be the new U.S. ambassador to Denmark.

Crowe will succeed Ambassador Fred J. Russell, in the post in Copenhagen if his nomination gets Senate approval.

Russell left as ambassador in November and the post has been vacant ever since.

A native of New York City,

Crowe has had a long career in the State Department, including service as ambassador to Ceylon and the Union of South Africa. He was chief of intelligence with the office of Strategic Services in the China - Burma - India theater during World War II and from 1948 to 1949 served as a special representative on an Economic Cooperation Mission to China. He also was a special assistant to the Secretary of State in the Eisenhower administration from 1957 to 1959.
